

Your donations to Goodwill are the fuel for "Power of Work" job training. Your donations empower people and help them get a job.

This year, when you donated clothing and household items, you helped the startup of the new Retail Associate Training Store.

Goodwill's new in-house Retail Store for training in donation processing, merchandising, inventory management, cash registers and customer service.

When you donate old t-shirts and towels, you provide materials for training in Recycled Rags where textiles are repurposed as industrial cleaning rags.

Business 101: Recycled Rags repurposes donated textiles into a marketable commodity - industrial cleaning rags - and sells them.

When you donate business clothing, you give confidence to people through the Suit YourSelf interview preparation program.

This is only the "tip of the iceberg" - donated cardboard, electronics, computers, computer equipment, small appliances - it's all good for the community, environment and your neighbor who needs new job skills.

Your donations fuel "Power of Work" training at Goodwill

Many thanks for donating to and shopping at Goodwill of the Berkshires and Southern Vermont. Your support made it possible for Goodwill to deliver 394 job training services in the past year, and helped 74 people get a job.
